Quick Comment:

I wish to object most strongly to the proposal to build houses opposite Abbotsford AGALA029 Netherlands.

Scott bought the house, enlarged and decorated it because of its view across the Tweed. He positioned his deathbed to look out on it. It is an integral part of the literary heritage of Scotland and to build houses with an entirely intrusive effect is an act of vandalism and will be damaging to tourism and to cultural reputation.

The proposed screen of trees is entirely inadequate as a disguise. This must not be allowed to go ahead.

I find it almost impossible to believe that it is planned to build houses on Scott's view from Abbotsford. AGALA029. This is an outlook that Scott made famous, that he positioned his deathbed to look out at, and that was his reason for buying and decorating Abbotsford in the first place. It is an integral part of Abbotsford and Scott's legacy and therefore a part of Scottish literary culture and heritage. This is utter vandalism. You might as well exhume Scott and dance on his grave
