Having volunteered for several years at Abbotsford House as one of the Minibus drivers I have heard many, many comments from visitors from both far and near of how much they appreciate the unspoilt views from the historic house stating that they especially loved the views from the North side of the house looking over the river Tweed, which have hardly changed from the time when Scott lived there. While I appreciate the need for local housing I personally totally object to the proposed selection of Netherbarns for this. As we don't live in the middle of a city where building land is scarce, I'm sure there are other options of more suitable sites where houses could be built.
