Question 14

National park:

1 I would question the need for a Borders National Park.

The Borders is one of the most beautiful parts of the country. This has evolved over the years without major interference and I see no reason to start now.

2 The cost.

At a meeting we had in Denholm we were told that it would cost several million to set up and run. From the discussion it appeared that the main objective was to encourage tourism; if this is so the money would be better spent supporting existing bodies which are already promoting tourism.

3 Regulatory Burden

I believe it would put another layer of bureaucracy on to what is already a well regulated area adding additional cost for no gain.

4 Tourism

The beauty of the Borders is its peaceful countryside. Putting too much emphasis on tourism could end up destroying what we already have now.

5 Well run with enthusiastic people it could work but as with so many of these organisations, over time ,the wrong people end up running them and the whole principle becomes lost.

For those reasons I object to a Borders National Park.

I believe this would be the view of most farmers.
